(3) Rules, made after the prorogation of the last session, including rules previously published, shall be laid before the National Assembly and the Senate as soon as may be after the commencement of next session, respectively, and thereby shall stand referred to the Standing Committees concerned with the subject matter of the rules for examination, recommendations and report to the National Assembly and the Senate to the effect whether the rules,—

- (a) have duly been published for considering the objections or suggestions, if any, and timely been made;
- (b) have been made within the scope of the enactment;
- (c) are explicit and covered all the enacted matters;
- (d) relate to any taxation;
- (e) bar the jurisdiction of any Court;

- (f) give retrospective effect to any provision thereof;
- (g) impose any punishment; and
- (h) made provision for exercise of any unusual power.”.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Subject to the Constitution primarily Majlis-e-Shoora (Parliament) has exclusive power to make laws with respect to any matter in the Federal Legislative List. Frequently enactments empower the Government, or specified bodies or office-holders to make rules to carry out the purposes thereof popularly known as delegated, secondary, or sub-ordinate legislation.

Rules of both the National Assembly and the Senate provide that delegated legislation may be examined by the Committees concerned. But practically no effective parliamentary oversight has been made. Further, in the prevalent legal system it is also a departure from the principle of separation of powers that laws should be made by the elected representatives of the people in Parliament and not by the executive Government. In parliamentary democracies, the principle has been largely preserved through an effective system of parliamentary control of executive law-making, by making provision that copies of all sub-ordinate legislations be laid before each House of the Parliament within prescribed sitting days thereof otherwise they cease to have effect.

Although under the Constitution, the Cabinet is collectively responsible to the Senate and the National Assembly, yet, under the Rules of Business, 1973, the Minister-in-Charge is responsible for policy concerning his Division and the business of the Division is ordinarily disposed of by, or under his authority, as he assumes primary responsibility for the disposal of business pertaining to his portfolio. Therefore it is necessary that all rules, including previously published, made after the prorogation of the last session shall be laid before both Houses as soon as may be after the commencement of a session and thereby shall stand referred to the Standing Committee concerned with the subject matter of the rules.

The proposed amendment would achieve objective of valuable participation of the people, in rules making process, meaningful exercise of authority by the Minister-in-Charge to assume primary responsibility for the disposal of business pertaining to his portfolio including rule making and efficient and effective parliamentary oversight relating to delegated legislation.
